

ID: W2581807008

TITLE: Terrestrial discharges mediate trophic shifts and enhance methylmercury accumulation in estuarine biota

AUTHOR: ['Sofi Jonsson', 'Agneta Andersson', 'Mats Nilsson', 'Ulf Skyllberg', 'Erik Lundberg', 'Jeffra K. Schaefer', 'Staffan Åkerblom', 'Erik Björn']

ABSTRACT:

Terrestrial discharge can cause pelagic zone trophic shifts and enhance methylmercury accumulation in plankton three- to sixfold.

SOURCE: Science advances

PDF URL: <https://advances.sciencemag.org/content/advances/3/1/e1601239.full.pdf>

CITED BY COUNT: 88

PUBLICATION YEAR: 2017

TYPE: article

CONCEPTS: ['Methylmercury', 'Food web', 'Environmental science', 'Biota', 'Trophic level', 'Ecosystem', 'Mesocosm', 'Bioaccumulation', 'Environmental chemistry', 'Pelagic zone', 'Zooplankton', 'Biogeochemical cycle', 'Terrestrial ecosystem', 'Estuary', 'Aquatic ecosystem', 'Ecology', 'Chemistry', 'Biology']